HSC BS Skills: Extended Response (Section IV)
The Case Study Extended Response

Before you start writing… PLAN YOUR ANSWER!	Section IV is a little more complex as the questions often requires you to connect two different parts (dot points) from the course. You should identify any key relevant syllabus content and plan to make logical connections – it might be helpful to draw lines between your planned content to then refer to when writing Plan what case study/ies you will use You should do all of this in the first page of your writing booklet – not on the exam paper
Introduction	Stuck on how to start? Define a key concept in the question as a starting point. Introduce the theme for the response (the big ideas and connections) – like a thesis statement. Introduce your case study/ies (at least one of your major examples). Example: "Qantas, Google and other businesses have demonstrated how…"

Body of the Response	Address each part of the question – use relevant syllabus theory points Use business terminology and concepts Use headings to structure your work – should be key syllabus elements relating to the question Follow the directive term that you have been given. Write GOOD paragraphs! Every paragraph should: • Identify and define the key idea in the paragraph (often similar to your chosen heading) • Build with more fact/theory/detail • Link to case study/ies – outline how your business has used the business theory you have just written about (or how they have been influenced etc). Need some specific information in your case study link If you have been asked to analyse/evaluate/discuss, you will need another paragraph which gives the DEPTH needed for these directive terms. The first paragraph sets the basic context. The second paragraph starts to analyse etc.
Conclusion	This is where you round off your essay – you are aiming to show the marker that what you have written will convince them of the original theme that you established in the introduction Do not start it with "in conclusion,…" Only need to write 1-2 sentences – emphasise the links in the question and mention again one of your case studies

The best way to prepare for this part of the HSC exam is to:

1. Know your syllabus
2. Have good study notes (which you review and re-read) which give you the detail to write about the syllabus dot points.
3. Have excellent case study notes and learn them.
4. Read past answers and exemplars
5. Write write write! Use past HSC papers and write your own responses. Set yourself a time limit. Pass EACH one to your teacher for feedback. Complete one, get feedback, then attempt another – no point in making the same errors on more than one paper!

FYI: A typical BAND 6 student in Business Studies:

Band 6

- demonstrates comprehensive knowledge and understanding of business functions and operations
- critically analyses the nature, role and structure of business
- evaluates the effectiveness of management responses to internal and external influences that affect business
- interprets and applies specific numerical data to analyse and solve business problems and predict future trends
- synthesises contemporary business issues when evaluating management responses and strategies
- clearly communicates using business terminology, concepts and comprehensive case studies in a variety of appropriate formats